FOREST FIRES NOW UNDER CONTROL

Known Dead in Northern Ontario Will Total 100, in Michigan Seven

COMPARES IT TO DANTE'S "INFERNO"

Survivor of Philadelphia Mine Describes His Experience—Woodlands in Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island Burned Over—Summer Residences at York Beach Threatened—$1,500,000 Lumber Loss.

Toronto, Ont., July 13.—Reports tonight from northern Ontario point to the effect that the forest fires which for several days have swept over a section of country extending 200 miles northward from North bay and covering a wide section east and west have either been extinguished or are under control.

No Further Loss of Life Expected. No further extensive damage or loss of life is expected. The towns of Cochrane, South Porcupine and Pellyville have been obliterated. The fire swept clean the townships of Langmuir, Eldorado, Shaw, Delgo, Ogden, McArthur and Cripple Creek districts.

Known Dead Number 100. The known dead total 100, the majority of whom lost their lives at South Porcupine. There are believed to have been many other fatalities. The number is problematical and estimates based upon unverified reports run as high as 400.

Relief Train Leaves for Porcupine. A relief train left North Bay this afternoon for Porcupine with supplies. Plenty of funds have been subscribed in this city for immediate help.

10,000 Miles Burned Over. Refugees from the burned area say the fire covers 10,000 square miles, comprising a district that housed 20,000 people. From every quarter have come fugitives who escaped the flames, many of them badly burned in their efforts to save effects in their flight. It is evident that it will be some days and perhaps weeks before any accurate idea of the total number of dead is available.

Many Died of Exhaustion. Many of the panic-stricken people fled to the hills and mountains. They have not been heard from since. Others who possibly survived the storm of fire are believed to have died from exhaustion. Some are being taken forward cannot possibly be gotten to them across the charred acres. Some survivors are coming in with their clothing torn and their limbs cut in their mad rush through the woods. Some told of stumbling over bodies of those who had run before them and died on the way.

Hard Task for Searching Parties. Searching parties have a difficult task before them. Hundreds on the mountainside are believed to be dead but there is no semblance of relief organization yet.

RACE WITH FLAMES. Survivor Says Scene Was Worse Than Dante's Inferno.

Porcupine, Ont., July 13.—One of the most vivid stories by a survivor of the conflagration which swept away the Philadelphia mine settlement was that of E. P. Ashmore, manager of the mine, who lies terribly burned in an impromptu hospital.

Chased by Sheets of Flame. "Dave," as he is called, "never imagined anything so horrible as the scene at the Philadelphia mine. The wind drove the conflagration towards us in hurricane force. I saw the flames of our men began to run through the woods, but I dared not for the pond with C. E. Adams, our cook. It was a terrible race against the flames. I left Adams' body by the side of the pond and began my long walk to South Porcupine. It was the most terrible trip imaginable.

Carried Dead Man on Shoulders. "Adams' heart gave out and then I had to carry him. In the pond we were safe, but I had to keep Adams on my shoulders. Soon he died. For over half an hour I had to stand with the dead man on my shoulders before the flames had passed and I was able to reach land again. I left Adams' body by the side of the pond and began my long walk to South Porcupine. It was the most terrible trip imaginable.

Charred Bodies All Around. "Charred bodies lay all around me as I walked. Blinded by smoke I groped along in the darkness, stumbling over a corpse, and by bending down recognized the body of some friend of mine. Finally I reached what remained of South Porcupine and felt exhausted.

WORST OVER IN MICHIGAN. Fires Continue, but Unless Wind Freshens, Peril is Over.

Detroit, Mich., July 13.—Reports received tonight from both the Lake Huron shores and the Michigan central districts of northern Michigan indicate that for the present, unless the winds freshen, the greatest peril of the forest fires is over. In the district between Alpena and Cheboygan fires continue, but no further loss of life has been reported. Millersburg, Tower and Onaway are safe.

People Have Sufficient Food. The situation at Oscoda and Au Sable is relieved. The stricken people remain at the sites of the stricken towns and all are being housed in military tents and have a plentiful supply of food for the present. The demand for relief is at the Tawassee, where at least 500 refugees are quartered.

Dead Now Number Five at Au Sable. The finding of the body of Frank Claremont, 35 years old, at Au Sable today raised the number of known dead there to five.

Seven Deaths in State. George Shelton, who was fatally burned yesterday at Vanderbit, died today, making a total of seven known deaths in this state due to forest fires.

Residential Section Saved. The residential section of Waters, which last night was apparently doomed, was saved. The Stephens Lumber company's loss at Waters is about half a million dollars.

Lumber Losses Will Reach $1,500,000. Lumber losses in Osageo, Montmorency, Crawford, Osceola and Cheboygan counties will total more than $1,500,000.

A favorable turn of the wind which sent the flames back over the path they had traveled saved the summer cottages of C. D. Kenney of Cincinnati, O., and Mrs. L. H. Hall of Baltimore, Md., which were threatened. About 500 acres of timber land was burned over.

More than a hundred men were fighting the flames today, with but small result, as the woods are so dense that it is almost impossible to dig ditches deep enough to stop the advance of the fire. Until late last night the territory burned over was mostly woodland of little value, but the fire spread to the base of the mountain, which is covered by a heavy growth of hard timber.

Atlantic City, N. There were Elks in the conventional dress suits and Elks in the most fantastic uniforms. All of them got an enthusiastic reception from the crowd. "New York were dark coats and light trousers, with straw hats. Chicago had white suits, light trousers, high white hats and canes. Cincinnati wore red golf suits trimmed with green. Baltimore Elks were in the navy officers' summer uniform. Boston Elks wore cream colored clothes and were led by men in black walking coats and white trousers. ATWOOD CIRCLES THE WASHINGTON MONUMENT.

Daring Aviator Does Several Sensational Stunts at Capitol.

Washington, July 13.—Harry N. Atwood, the Boston aviator, flew over the city in his aeroplane today, played aerial pranks with the Washington monument, circled tall buildings, had fun with an army of soldiers, and landed at various points in Potomac park, and finally, after a series of sensational stunts, landed at the top of the Washington monument. Atwood's most spectacular exploit followed his circling of the monument. After wheeling three around the big shaft, he sped away in the direction of the Virginia hills. Turning sharply, the aviator drove his aeroplane directly at the top of the monument, as though he intended to knock off the aluminum tip, and when almost directly over the apex he shut off his motor and descended to the ground. The crowd and police, who had been decoyed to the riverbank, made a rush back toward the monument, but Atwood laughingly turned on his engine again and swept back directly over their heads. After a number of complicated evolutions he turned the nose of his plane toward the Maryland field.

The weather was perfect for the flight and after two years before, with the aid of a professional safe opener, went to see's flat, searched his safe and obtained many letters from her. The girl repudiated an alleged confession, said to have been made to police, that she had been seduced by Atwood, and that she had used for immoral purposes, and took refuge in the language of Absolute Life, which to most of those in the court room proved unintelligible.

Possible "White Slave" Prosecution. These were taken in charge by federal officers with a view to possible prosecution under the white slave act. They were lent to the state for use during the trial.

Sent It Through Aldrich. I asked him if the president sent that message, for I thought it strange that the president would tell me that. He said: 'Why, he sent it through Senator Aldrich—of course he would not send it to you directly—who would communicate to you through George Reynolds of the Continental bank.' I said: 'Very Well.'

Received No Word from Aldrich. "Did you receive a communication from Senator Aldrich or Mr. Reynolds?" asked Attorney J. J. Healy, who was conducting the examination for the committee. "No, sir."

Did Not Say He Would Assist Lorimer. "Did you tell Mr. Hines that you would assist Mr. Lorimer?" asked Mr. Healy. "I did not."
